

SEEK WIS. MARKET FOR HEALTHY HOGS

Farm Bureau Working to Develop Better Market for Rock Co. Farmers.

A Wisconsin market for Rock county pork hogs with a premium for quality is expected to be developed when the second test of infected herds is completed in the event farmers here accept the area plan to eradicate bovine tuberculosis.

A definite understanding is being sought on just what requirements must be met to obtain the 10 cent and even a 15 cent premium offered by the packers for swine from an accredited area. The first test over 75 per cent. The sold weather has been some handicap to the signing up of the county but petition carriers have worked hard to put the percent of infection should be brought down to less than one percent and then it becomes a problem of adequate protection and a county system of retelling to keep the herds fully accredited.

There is to be a conference of Wisconsin packers this month at which time an effort will be made to have them accept Rock county hogs at premium prices when the first test is completed and reasonable time elapsed to clean out the infection among the market hogs.

Hope for Easy Test
An early test this winter or spring should mean a good premium on the porkers marketed next fall or late summer. Another proposal is to have a killing test on swine from herds carefully protected so as the owners can realize a premium at an early date and not have to wait until the county shows less than one percent infection.

An attempt will be made to develop a "home market" in nearby cities such as Madison, Port Washington and Jefferson whereby farmers in Rock county can save freight charges, obtain a premium for quality stock and healthy hogs that show below the average percent of tuberculosis infection.

Since the premium is offered for an accredited county, the Farm Bureau is seeking to realize the additional return to the farmers on a fair basis as quickly as possible once the county-wide test is put through.

State Cattle Figures
The state reports presented at the meeting in Madison Saturday shows that there are 65,735 head of cattle in Rock county.

The total number of grades reported is 67,938 and 12,810 purebreds. The indemnity cost for the area test, born by the state federal government for Rock county is estimated as being $159,960 and the total cost of testing, also paid by the state is estimated as being $16,540.

The increased return on swine will run between $18,000 and $25,000 depending at what time the increased premium is realized and is estimated the average value of Rock county cattle will be raised from $65 to the present mark to over $100 and a higher figure as the quality of the livestock is improved and more farmers raise cattle with the view of selling them as breeding animals instead of cull.

Manover Meeting
Confidence was expressed at the meeting in Manover on Monday night that Plymouth township would sign 95 percent for the area test. The township is fully organized and petition carriers started working on Tuesday and expect to have the district covered by Thursday night.

During the Farm Bureau meeting, the officers of the township and delegates to the county convention were named. Old officers were re-elected. There were many women attending the meeting, urging the test from a health standpoint. A meeting was held in Lima township Tuesday afternoon and a big crowd is expected for the meeting in the court house Tuesday night for Rock, La Prairie and Janesville townships.

CLINTON DISTRICT OVER 100 PERCENT FOR AREA TESTING

School district number two of Clinton township was reported in 100 percent for the area test to eradicate bovine tuberculosis. The entire township is expected to sign up more than 75 per cent. The sold weather has been some handicap to the signing up of the county but petition carriers have worked hard to put the percent of infection should be brought down to less than one percent and then it becomes a problem of adequate protection and a county system of retelling to keep the herds fully accredited.

NEW WIRING CODE PUBLIC SAFEGUARD

State Man Explains New Rules — Enforcement Starts Jan. 1.

Important revelations in regard to the new state electric code which became effective in November were made by John A. Hoeveler, electrical engineer for the state industrial commission, in an address before 25 local electricians at the city hall Monday night. Enforcement of the code, so far as Janesville is concerned, will begin Jan. 1, 1923. City electrician V. F. Moore announced.

Mr. Hoeveler explained the general application of the new code to all indoor and outdoor electric wiring applications, and then took up in detail the part covering electrical utilization equipment which covers practice for all indoor wiring applications. Emphasis was laid on the importance of having a suitable ground on one of the service wires at each house and permission to use same ground for both the inside conduit system and the grounded electric service wire.

Identification of grounded wire for all lighting circuits was also mentioned. The purpose of this is to furnish better safety to the public and guard against hazards in coming in contact with grounded material. Mr. Hoeveler said. On all conductors the minimum size conduit allowed is one-half inch. The minimum size wire on all wiring jobs shall be No. 14. Metal outlet boxes are required on all outlets on knob and tube work. Disconnecting switches are required on all motor starting equipment, switches to be enclosed and externally operated. All fuses and cutouts must be in inclosed metal box. Branch circuit wattage.

formerly 100, has been increased to 1,000.

Emphasis was laid on the practice of lamping with fuses and using other substitutes for replacement. Order No. 1321 on this subject prohibits the practice of placing pennies behind plug fuses, or the installation of link fuses for wires on the outside of the building. Attention was also brought to the rules governing installation of antennae for wireless or radio stations to safeguard this equipment when installed out of doors.

"The new code is drawn up to cover standard practice both from the standpoint of fire hazard and safety to the public," he declared. "Electricity is the safest and most convenient type of power available and has had a tremendous growth, necessitating construction by inexperienced people, making it necessary to

SHORTHORN BREEDERS TO MEET WEDNESDAY
Milking Shorthorn breeders who had stock at the Chicago International Livestock exposition will meet in the Cassius C. H. room on Wednesday afternoon to consider plans for showing next year. It is expected greater interest will be shown in showing in display herds and with more breeders planning to exhibit for the 1923 fair and exhibitions.

The proper time to start preparations for showing is long before the fairs to put the animals in the best show condition. The females must be freshened about show time and in the adopt better standards and enforce them."

BRODHEAD
Brodhead—Dr. Roger Mooney went to Madison Monday, where he has arranged to open dental parlors.

Misses Riley Wooding, I. H. and D. C. Howard were in Janesville Monday. Dr. L. E. Rowe went to Chicago Sunday, where he will practice medicine.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Dooley visited Janesville friends Monday.

Mrs. E. T. Farmer left Monday for a short visit, after which she will go to Chicago.

News has been received here from Long Beach, Cal., that O. J. Barr, formerly a resident of Janesville is soon to be married.

The buffalo advertised by Levenick Bros. has arrived and will be cut up and sold to those desiring buffalo steaks.

The various churches and Sunday schools of the city are arranging appropriate Christmas services, most of which will be held Saturday night.

The Misses Esther and Frieda Ciesse, Tuda, were in Brodhead Monday.

PLYMOUTH F. H. OFFICERS.
The officers elected at the Plymouth township Farm Bureau meeting were as follows: C. O. Onsgard, president and treasurer; George Hemmingway, secretary. The delegates to the county convention named were James Murphy, Allan Long, Gilbert Knudson, Moses Seidmore and Ben Borken-hagen. Inman Gilbertson will be chairman of the next meeting. C. J.

Cantilevers Are Restful Shoes for Men and Women

We all complain about uncomfortable chairs. And yet it is less thing to be seated than to stand. If all people would exercise the same haste in selecting comfortable shoes as they do in securing the most comfortable seats, there wouldn't be enough Cantilever Shoes to go around.

Fortunately it takes a long time to bring home to everyone the news about Cantilever Shoes. Advertising a good article is a slow process; only the facile can sell quickly and we have to be quick. We see new buyers every day; we know how good these shoes are and we are going to keep on advertising them.

Like An Easy Chair
They're good looking shoes. They're comfortable. They're well made, according to scientific principles which are for your benefit—not ours. They're priced right—a dollar value for a dollar cost. Not the old dollar but the new dollar. They're restful shoes, as nice to stand in and walk in as your easy chair is to sit in.

"Better Shoes—Better Feet—Better Feet—Better Health." Come and see the Cantilever.

Give Shoes

The Thoughtful Family Gift

Within your family circle there are several to whom such a thoughtful gift will be most welcome.

These are days when most of us are wondering what to give this one and that one on our Christmas lists.

You're anxious to please all of them—you want to give something that you know will really express your thoughtfulness and consideration.

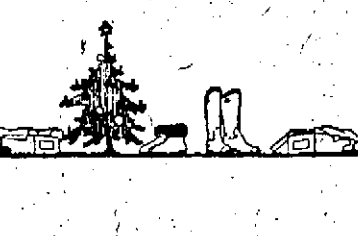

For those within the family circle you'll find footwear to be about the best selection you could make.

There's no gift more personal, or more practical than footwear. No gift can give more real comfort, or furnish a more pleasant reminder of your thoughtfulness throughout many months to come. There are some on your gift list who will welcome shoes—the useful gift.

THE REAL MESSAGE OF CHRISTMAS

It is a little over 1900 years ago that the first message came out of the Near East. It took a long time for it to reach some sections of the world and there yet may be far corners where the message has not penetrated. Civilization had not yet begun to emerge from a multitude of gods and myths. Superstition was the most powerful agent with which to rule peoples. Revenge and hate, cupidity and lust of power, pomp and fustian and panoply of barbarism, massacre and murder, assassination and intrigue, betrayal of men and women, slavery of body and barter of souls were attributes and indices of leadership. Religion had fallen into the hands of an avaricious and mendacious priesthood, monotheistic and pantheistic, who with strange signs and the mystery of magic sought to keep the masses impoverished and gnawing at bones thrown to keep them from thinking.

Into this world of barbarism and savage relations of man to man still defending the home with a club and a sword, came this message of light. It breathed no revolution in government. It said: "Render therefore unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's." That message said an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth—the iron, soulless doctrine of vengeance, was no longer in force. It breathed consideration for the rights of others and swept away the garments of ceremony, the insincerity, and tore off the veneer with which the world was enshrouded. Falsehood shriveled and died, rags and poverty were exalted and business in high places was exposed, and held up to scorn; and above all and over all was the paramount doctrine, "Love thy neighbor as thyself."

No great herald was made of the coming of the man who gave that message. His place is small in the chronicle of those times. His very message is given in the most condensed form. In this day a thousand books with every intricate detail would have been written about that life. He can be compared to none other. We seek for similars in Confucius and Buddha, in the literature of the Zend Avesta and along the road of heathen philosophy from Marcus Aurelius to Mahomet, but after all they pale into cold and unresponsive words—mere gibberish—when placed side by side with the Judean message of 1900 years ago.

On that message an unconquerable League of Nations could have been organized. But greed has been powerful and distrust has been both the form and substance of national life. "For whether is greater, the gold or the temple that sanctifieth the gold." "For they bind heavy burdens and grievous to be borne but they themselves will not move them with one of their fingers." So, for the rich who enslaved the poor, that message was a whip to make the flesh creep and the conscience to be a burden. "For a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth." The profiteer, the usurer, the lazy and indolent, the servant who was unfaithful, the corrupt judge and the vicious prosecutor, the meticulous hypocrite, the oppressive ruler—each of these is set forth with added warnings. But over and above all is that, "Love your enemies, do good and lend; hoping for nothing again." "Give and it shall be given to you."

This then is the spirit of the real Christmas. It is in sacrifice and helpfulness that it may be best enjoyed. The birth of the Christ in Bethlehem was but incident. What he said afterward is the great thing and has changed the whole face of the world. Scold as one may, refuse to believe as one has the right in a land where freedom of mind is an heritage of freedom, yet we unconsciously, in the remembrance of Christmas, carry into effect some of that message of 1900 years ago. These are so inherently associated that one cannot write of Christmas and avoid it. We are ambassadors of the very spirit involved when we remember the little children and "refuse them not." No other peoples save, and excepting those who have heard that message for a regenerated world, "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends," can really celebrate Christmas.

If all that spirit could be the moving incentive for the world there would be no blood and crime, there would be no selfishness and greed, and instead of a horde of peoples ready to fly at each other's throats, there would be the incarnation of the message of Christmas, "Peace on Earth," from Greenland's icy mountain to India's coral strand.

NO LOAN TO GERMANY.

One reason that we find it so hard to always come to any conclusion as to what is going on in Europe is the censorship. Here, it is weeks, since the Greek executions and the real news is just beginning to seep through from correspondents who have been permitted to leave that country. Telegrams are controlled by governments and nothing is permitted to leave unless satisfactory to those governments. However, we have been getting a fair idea of the situation in reference to the German reparations for there is no censorship in London.
None inspired the Germans to believe that with no other qualification than a signature on the notes and bonds, America would send over about two billion dollars in money. But this has been shattered since it is necessary that a nation as well as a firm or individual show some sign of recognizing previously made contracts before adding to the credits. This refusal of the German

BANKS AS PUBLISHERS

By FREDERICK J. HASKIN
Washington—It has often been said that the United States government is the biggest institution in the world. It has also been said that it is the worst. The first assertion tends to make us swell with national pride. The second reduces the swelling.
Both assertions are substantially true. There can be no doubt about the size of the business establishment conducted by Uncle Sam, and there have been so many revelations as to the wasteful and inefficient manner in which he does business that nothing of that sort should anybody say more. It is all the more interesting, accordingly, to learn that something has actually been accomplished in the way of injecting real business methods into government affairs.
One such step in that direction was the creation of a federal specifications board with Dr. S. W. Stratton, head of the Bureau of Standards, as chairman, and now a second has been taken through the appointment by the American engineering standards committee of a standing committee on cooperation with the federal specifications board. This will give the government the best brains and talent at the disposal of the 200 industrial organizations that are cooperating in the work of the American engineering standards committee.
The members of the committee who are to work with Dr. Stratton's board are: Chairman, A. H. Hall, assistant treasurer and superintendent of distribution, Central Union Gas company, New York; John A. Capp, chief of testing laboratory, General Electric company, Schenectady; and Sullivan J. Jones, chairman of the structural service committee, American Institute of Architects, New York.
In commercial circles it has long been a common saying that it costs 10 per cent more to do business with the government than with other customers. This waste—and surely unnecessary expense must be so termed—has been due largely to a lack of uniformity in government specifications covering articles to be purchased by various government agencies and to the fact that the government specifications were rarely if ever identical with those of ordinary commercial concerns.
This has meant that an individual or a corporation that wanted to sell a certain article to the government had found differing specifications issued by various departments or bureaus, none of which conformed exactly with the specifications which must be met in dealing with private buyers. Thus it has been practically impossible to produce a standard article that would meet all ordinary requirements, governmental and commercial.
Dr. Stratton's board aims to bring into line with the best commercial practice, not only the specifications which are to be approved by the board in the future but also those which have already been approved. Of the latter there are about 40 and these will be revised at intervals of about one year.
The specifications which have already been submitted to the American engineering standards committee under the new cooperative arrangement cover the following: Hose for various industrial purposes, wood screws, steeling equipment, cotton duck, phosphor, tin, silicon copper and pig ironous opinion of federal officials and the officers of the American engineering standards committee that this cooperation between manufacturing industries, the government and other customers will result in a widening of the source of supply for all government requirements and in important economies not only to the government but to other consumers of those products which are also required by the government departments. It is expected that this saving will amount to many millions of dollars each year.

The first thing that standardization does, according to Dr. Stratton, secretary of the American engineering standards committee, is to enable buyer and seller to speak the same language and to make it possible to compel competitive sellers to do likewise. In thus placing tenders on an equally comparable basis, fairness in competition is promoted both in domestic and in foreign trade.
Mass production is made possible, with the result that unit costs to the public are lowered. The matter of carrying stocks is simplified and makes deliveries quicker. The big idea is to save money for the government, which benefits everybody, and at the same time make possible better products in all lines of industry, which will be to the advantage of all consumers, public and private.
The work of the Stratton board in cooperation with the representatives of the American engineering standards committee is directly in line with the drive for the elimination of wastes in industry and may be said to be a part of it. It all goes to show that business men are taking a genuine interest in government affairs and may mark the end of the era characterized by the saying that "everybody's business is nobody's business."

One of these days a board or a committee and political campaigns, and then the millionaires will be in sight. It may be also expected that sooner or later those who believe in and subscribe to the slogan "More business in government" and less government in business, will start a movement to put a man in the White House who is distinctly a business man.
Some years ago in a preliminary campaign an organization was formed in New York that undertook to get a line on public sentiment as to a business man candidate for president. Advertisements were published throughout the country asking for responses from those who believed in the general proposition that inasmuch as the government is a monumental business enterprise the man at the head of it should be the biggest and ablest business executive who could be found. No candidate was advocated, but it was said that a number of men were available, any one of whom might fill the bill.
The returns from this propaganda were surprisingly large, it is said, and the organization soon had a mailing list of hundreds of thousands of voters in all parts of the country who had indicated a desire to cooperate in a campaign for a business man candidate. For some reason, the movement "died a born," but it went far enough to indicate that when a real fight is started along those lines the old-line politicians and statesmen will have cause to sit up and take notice.
Of the men in sight who might include such as Herbert Hoover, former governor Frank Lowden, of Illinois, and Gifford Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, while on the democratic side William Gibbs McAdoo looms up prominently and James M. Cox, the nominee of 1920, may claim to be more of a business man than a professional man. Henry Ford, who is suspected of presidential aspirations, is a business man, but he is also somewhat of an anomaly. He has been a candidate for a republican nomination, and then the democratic nominee for the same office, so no one may be quite sure of his politics at this time, and he is looked upon as a radical rather than as a business man's candidate.
However, if and when it should appear that the winning is good for business men there is little doubt that there will be a sufficiency of entries who can qualify.

banking house to make a loan will be a bitter disappointment to the internationalists in America but will be generally supported by the people who are opposed to getting deeper into the European entanglements.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST
A PRAYER FOR LOYALTY
Oh God, bring back the violent hands
To service in our troubled lands:
Teach those who preach a selfish creed
The splendor of each loyal deed
And grace those hearts now filled with hate,
With love of country and of state.

Oh God who hears men's discontent,
Endow them with all sentiment;
Teach them to see with eyes of love
The beauty of the flag above.
So they may reverently and true
Before the altars of our land.

Bring them to laughter and to peace,
That all disloyalty may cease;
Open their eyes that they may see
The precious gifts of liberty
And make of them who would destroy
Sure builders of a greater joy.

Teach them to use their talents well,
To grace the homes which they dwell
To train their children to be just,
Brave, true and steadfast to a trust,
God-fearing men in every test,
Giving their country all their best.

Oh God, endow us all, we pray,
With patriotic hearts today;
Let all who share Thy kindly sun
Stand to the tasks that must be done,
Undaunted when the clouds descend,
Patient and loyal to the end.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

By ROY K. MOULTON
MY IMPRESSIONS OF AMERICA.
By Sir Cuthbert Clabney.
A most peculiar thing happened in another city, where I was lecturing. They arranged an elaborate reception for me in their rough way and tried to make me feel welcome, although heaven knows I did not wish to be made to feel that way. The ladies hovered about me and I made the most innocent remark.
"It is extraordinary," I said, "that I have not run across any beautiful women in America. Don't you have them here, as we do in England?"
They seemed quite nonplussed, and I was soon left alone. Can it be possible that in this country there could have been no such ladies? The audience at my lecture next evening was very slim.
My manager asked me to refrain from making any more social engagements in cities where I was to lecture. I found seven millionaires in millions of homes in Pittsburgh and I announced the same to the press man who followed me about.
"Doubtless," I said, "there are thousands of blooming like those in American art galleries. Doubtless, they know nothing of art. It is possible to sell them anything. The artistic soul of America is not yet born."
I fancied that a corking bit of publicity when it came out in the papers. My manager, himself an American, with no sense of humor, was beside himself with rage. Our audience was so small next night I did not speak.
How very sensitive, how thin-skinned, if I may use the term! In a western city I just happened to remark to some press man, "It strikes me that the young women of America are a drunken, elegant-smoking, jazz-dancing crowd. I tremble for the future of your race."
I did not lecture that night. The silly old fossil who owned the hall wouldn't open it. It seems he has four or five daughters.

THE LOVE LETTERS DON'T IMPROVE

Erastosthenes and Lydia were found slain in the Lacedaemonian woods. Erastosthenes had always had a good reputation and not much was known of Lydia. At all events, both were married, but not to each other. Antiphon, an able debater and pleader, was appointed to investigate the mystery. He searched into the mystery, but the result was only discussion, contention and dispute. Then came iacrocates, who had written law speeches for years, and he also made an investigation.
This happened in the days when Alexandria was a great city. To this day the mystery of who slew Erastosthenes and Lydia has not been solved.
The world progresses, but it progresses slowly.—Maxwell Steinbrugg.

Dec. 20, 1882—A number of drunks and tramps were arrested recently. Three drunks were captured by Marshal Hogan yesterday and put in jail while two tramps, appearing in municipal court this morning, were given 30 days on bread and water for being drunk and disorderly. Hogan added a West Milwaukee street patrol last night and arrested the owners for running an illegal "blow."

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author
COOLING OFF CORRYZA
Corryza, with the accent on the eyes, is just not my dysentery but the proper name for the disease vulgarly called "cold in the head." There are other names commonly applied to corryza, such as "discharge," which is nearly always a misnomer, and "cold," and "acute catarrh," which is pleasing to those who exploit the nonentity called "catarrh," and finally "rhinitis," which means acute inflammation of the nose, and that is scarcely descriptive of corryza.
I told on Monday, Oct. 23, how to work off corryza and some cases of acute catarrh (otitis media), by taking out and changing wood for a few hours, or hitting briskly some five miles, or taking any other kind of vigorous exercise of sufficient duration to have an appreciable stimulation influence on metabolism. I took pains, too, to warn the experimenter that the time when this effort to "work it off" is worth while is at the very beginning of the indisposition, and that after the first six or 10 hours of said indisposition the better treatment is rest.
Another way to break up or abort a "threatening" or "oncoming" corryza is by cooling it off. The modus operandi of the cooling treatment is really a little over the top, but I can attempt to "explain" it. Nearly everybody has noticed, perhaps, a stuffiness in the nose, or a running of the nose, or a sneezing from a hot bath into cold air bath. This is only occasional and not very annoying in normal individuals, but a constant and troublesome complaint of persons having some chronic trouble in nose, throat or sinuses is temporary. If one remains in the cold air bath for longer than, say, half an hour, the upper breathing passage begins to clear out, and remains comfortably warm. I couldn't avoid adding that provision about keeping warm—no writing, no leaving my story unfinished. Every one who has made the observation of the clearing effect of cold air on the breathing knows that this effect is characteristic when one is keeping warm by, say, skating, tramping over the country with a pop gun after poor harmless little animals, shagging history out of some such vigorous activity. So, after all, it is merely a variation of "working it off." In both cases, the benefit derived, as far as the breaking up of the threatening corryza is concerned, depends upon stimulation of metabolism or the oxidation of combustion process of the system. Exercise causes increased absorption of oxygen in the system. So does cold air.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
Honest or Indian Snags.
Please tell me what honest tea is good for and what honest is. (P. G. T.)
Answer—Other names for honest are Eupatorium, Indian sage, and throughout. A tea made by steeping an ounce of the dried leaves in a pint of water, poured over the leaves with boiling hot and allowed to steep two hours, is given in doses of an ounce or two every hour to induce sweating, or in doses of half a pint to cause vomiting.
Oedipian Scent.
Many of our high school boys seek a remedy for oedipian sweating of the feet. (C. K. S.)
Answer—Naps or sponge soles and between toes with a solution of one ounce of formalin in six ounces of water, and let dry each alternate day for three or four times.
Perfect Lady, Harming Snags.
Kindly give me instructions for cleaning white spots from my finger and nails. As soon as some spots grow out others appear. (C. P. A.)
Answer—Regard your spots as white spots in the nails. They are commonly caused by slight injuries of the nails, as in the case of manicuring.
Milk and Running.
I would like to know whether the drinking of milk is harmful to track men. I have been told that it affects the wind, especially that of distance men. (P. L.)
Answer—Milk has only a good effect on the wind of a runner. It may well include a quart or two of fresh raw milk in his daily diet.

ASK US

(Any reader can get the answer to any question by writing the Gazette Information Bureau, Washington, D. C. Talk editor, public affairs, and we will try to give the best possible advice on local, medical, and financial matters. If attempted to settle domestic troubles, not to undertake exhaustive research on any subject, but to give you a general idea of the situation. We will not accept of return postage. Give full name and address. All letters are sent direct to the inquirer.)
Q. Do quail hatch young more than one a year? W. A. Z.
A. The department of agriculture says they do not usually do so, but that there are exceptions to the rule.
Q. What will soften rubber that has hardened with age? S. G.
A. The bureau of standards says that rubber which has been hardened cannot be restored to its original condition. The hardening is due chiefly to oxidation of the rubber by the oxygen of the air.
Q. What are the differences between a couch and a lounge? F. J. R.
A. Often in the furniture trade a couch is distinguished as having one arm, or raised end, and no back; a lounge is having one arm and a back; a sofa is having two arms and a back.
Q. Does a ragoon make a noise similar to a screech owl? S. H. H.
A. The department of agriculture says the screech owl is not similar. A ragoon grows.
Q. Who carried the news of the Boston tea party to New York? H. C. P.
A. Paul Revere participated in it and carried a report of it to New York. This was more than a year before his celebrated ride.
Q. What were Lincoln's favorite hymns? C. C. M.
A. His favorites are said to have been "Am I a Soldier of the Cross?" "The Battle Hymn of America" and "Tantum Ergo." There is a Fountain Filled with Blood; Alas and Did My Savior Die?
Q. Is blood transfusion a new idea? L. H.
A. The transfusion of blood from the veins of one living animal to those of another, or from those of a man or one of the lower animals into a man, is a very old operation, having been performed since 1492.
Q. What is a Cape foot? J. J. D.
A. A Cape foot is a South African unit of measure equal to 1.033 English feet.
Q. How long have we had traveling libraries? F. J. M.
A. Traveling libraries were known in England as early as 1817, the first general American traveling libraries supported by public funds were authorized by New York state legislature in 1832.
Q. In the battle of the Alamo were all the Texans killed? J. H.
A. All the Texans were killed in the battle of the Alamo except the commander, William Barrett Travis, and four of his men, who were taken

THE FIRST FIVE

Minutes of a Fire
Do you know what to do? Suppose it is your house burning up. It is often said that the first five minutes are worse than the rest of the day. If you have ever seen a real fire, you will know what this means. A small fire, if not quickly checked, may be sufficient to destroy a fire just beginning. After a fire gets underway, the entire fire is going headway, the entire fire is going headway, the entire fire is going headway. A fire breaks out, you must act quickly. You would be far better off if you know definitely what to do, because there is no time for pondering and wondering. Action springing from knowledge may save many lives and many dollars.
Now learn a tremendous lot about this vital thing from a 32-page booklet prepared by the National Fire Protection Association. You will secure a free copy of this booklet for an envelope and the coupon below, enclosing two cents in stamps for return postage. Write your name and address clearly.
Frederick J. Haskin, Director, The Janesville Daily Gazette Information Bureau, 202-204 W. Milwaukee St., Janesville, Wis.
I enclose herewith two cents in stamps for return postage on a free copy of the Fire Booklet.

Finished in Mahogany and Oak

Make This a Brunswick Christmas

An ideal addition to the Christmas festivities is a Brunswick, for it brings to each member of the household his favorite music in the intimate atmosphere of the home.
And note, too, that there is no reason, when buying a phonograph, to be satisfied with anything short of a Brunswick—for prices and terms on Brunswick are the same as those of other instruments.

Exclusive Features

Brunswick plays all makes of records without attachments. This means that with a Brunswick in your home you can enjoy all the great artists regardless of the make of records for which they record.
This is accomplished by the Ultone—a part of the Brunswick—not an "attachment."
Another exclusive Brunswick feature is the Oval Tone Amplifier or horn, made entirely of wood and moulded like a fine old violin. It is responsible for much of the wondrously beautiful Brunswick tone.

WEDNESDAY,

RUMORS OF LOAN
NAILED BY MORGANFinancier Denies Any Radical Departure in American Plans.By DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1922, by Janesville Daily
Gazette.

Washington—J. P. Morgan's statement that he told the German ambassador that prospects for a loan from international bankers were no better today than they were last June has cleared the air of rumors and fantastic theories of American aid to Europe.

Mr. Morgan said what the department of state was unable to say in answer to the unfounded fears of the "irreconcilables" and others who believed some radical departure in American policy was forthcoming. But Mr. Morgan's statement is another sign that the program drawn up by the international bankers' committee last June is revived.

The key to the future lies in the carefully worded document issued then by Mr. Morgan and his colleagues. Will France permit her member of the reparations commission to vote with the majority and issue a unanimous invitation to a bankers' committee again to devise ways and means of assisting the general economic situation in Europe? Will the bankers in June incur the disfavor of the French by pointing out the obvious though unwelcome fact that until there was some modification on the part of France toward the enforcement of clauses of the Versailles treaty and some limitation of Germany's liability was made consistent with the opinion of investors throughout the allied world, it was hopeless to talk loans.

U. S. Not a Party.
The United States government is not a party to these informal negotiations of the bankers. Mr. Morgan went abroad as a private citizen and with no commission official or unofficial from the American government. He was invited to sit with the international bankers' committee and render advice to the reparations commission. A dispute arose as to the text of the invitation to the bankers, the English and French wording being somewhat at variance. Anyway, the French saw the bankers' committee as a body attempting to usurp the functions of the reparations commission and as endeavoring to decrease Germany's reparations liability. Under such circumstances, the bankers' committee accomplished nothing except to set forth to the world views, which are as valid today as they were then.

Unquestionably the United States government is in complete accord with the statement made by the bankers' committee, namely that the fixing of the reparations must be done first before any private loans can be considered. The American government has been hopeful that France would invite the invitation to the bankers' committee and that at the same time diplomatic influence might be cautiously exerted to secure an agreement between the allies to forego enforcement of certain sections of the Versailles treaty.

Question of Credit.
The diplomatic parleys must proceed concurrently with any efforts of the bankers to examine anew the intricate questions of credit involved in the flotation of a loan to help Germany. The last word from the bankers' committee was in itself a bid for another invitation. It reads as follows: "The committee are deeply conscious of the immense assistance to the economic recovery of the whole world which would be afforded by gradual conversion of Germany's obligation from a debt to governments into a debt of private investors, based, like other public debts, not upon external sanctions, but upon the general credit of the debtor country. They believe, indeed, that the resumption of normal conditions between countries and the stabilization of exchanges are impossible without a definite settlement of the reparations payments as of other external public debts."

"At any time, therefore, the reparations commission is able to report by unanimous decision the invitation which now has been extended by the majority, the committee will be glad to meet again and resume the inquiry. They cannot conjecture whether the allied governments would be able to accept the necessary conditions, but if they report that they are hopeful that substantial loans could be raised."

Where Danger Lies.
"Finally, the committee desires to point out that in the meantime and even in the interval between such renewed invitation and the concern of subsequent negotiations, Germany's financial position may obviously be threatened with serious danger, protracted negotiations for a large long term loan might mature too late, if not preceded by immediate help. But if the problem were considered anew in the improved circumstances and with a real prospect of ultimate settlement, the committee feels that the obstacles which at present confront an interim loan probably would not prove to be insuperable."

"With a real hope of definite settlement within a reasonable period, it would be much easier to arrange a shorter term secured loan sufficient to save German credit from collapse during the period of negotiation. The committee need scarcely add that they would be glad under these circumstances to give any assistance in their power with regard to such a limited loan as well as with regard to the larger and more important problems."

Position of France.
Will France agree to renew the invitation to the bankers? The United States government, acting wholly as mediator and in an informal way, has been sounding the French government to see what can be done. Upon the answer of France today, as six months ago depends whether any progress can be made.

HEAVY CHRISTMAS
TRADE SEEN HEREHealthy Business Conditions
Reported by City's Merchants.

Janesville stores are this week arched in their best on the final lap before Christmas, which comes next Monday. Some of the stores are lavishly decorated and the windows, filled with gift suggestions, are attracting much attention.

A general feeling of optimism that this year will be much better than that experienced during the two previous years prevails among store proprietors here.

Big Crowd Saturday.
Saturday was a big day for business considering Christmas more than a week away and store keepers sold out some of their most popular Christmas gifts. Each year there are certain gifts which make a hit. One this year is the radio. People seem to hunt for the unusual more so than ever.

One store proprietor said that he had experienced a better business Saturday than he had during the past three years on the same day. A large store here which is one of a number owned by the same company is doing a larger business than the Rockford store owned by the same company.

Many Buy Early.
Merchants see each year the "Do Your Christmas Shopping Early" slogan, having more and more effect. They point to the present season where Christmas buying is more prolific as indicative of a trend toward a more prosperous year in 1923. Bankers are doing a good business, and several declare that the fact that Christmas savings clubs funds have been deposited instead of spent shows there is plenty of money in the family exchequer.

The cold weather has stimulated buying for it has created a demand for practical gifts. Many stores have found it necessary to employ additional help and even more will be employed on Friday and Saturday when the climax made by last minute shoppers is reached.

"JANESVILLE" SYSTEM
PROVING POPULAR

Pond du Lac and Wausau are installing bookkeeping and accounting systems this month almost identical with that adopted for the C. & V. clerk and treasurer's office in Janesville two years ago, according to word received at the local office.

C. A. Seifert, who put in the system here, is doing the work at Wausau. City Clerk E. J. Sartell has mailed a copy of every form in use here to the Pond du Lac office. The system of mailing out tax notices is also being followed out in the two cities. It is understood.

Dear Old Kris:

I think "the missus" deserves a REAL Christmas present this year.

Can you think of anything she would appreciate more than her own Savings Account—a real nest egg that she can add to regularly?

She has a lot of dreams tucked away in her head of things she wants to do, so if I give her a little start I'll bet she will save enough to make those dreams come true. Bless her heart, I should have done this long ago.

Please open a Savings Account for her with the enclosed check and hang the pass book, with my card enclosed, on our Xmas tree.
